Our strong and beautiful staff in the field in Haiti

10 months ago, with prayer and strong faith in our Saviour, we slowly started Penn Ayiti Foundation Inc., a 501(c)(3) non-profit Christian organization based in Pennsylvania and devoted to improving education for underserved children and women in Haiti.

And so, we bless and say thank you to our Almighty God and amazing friends in PA.

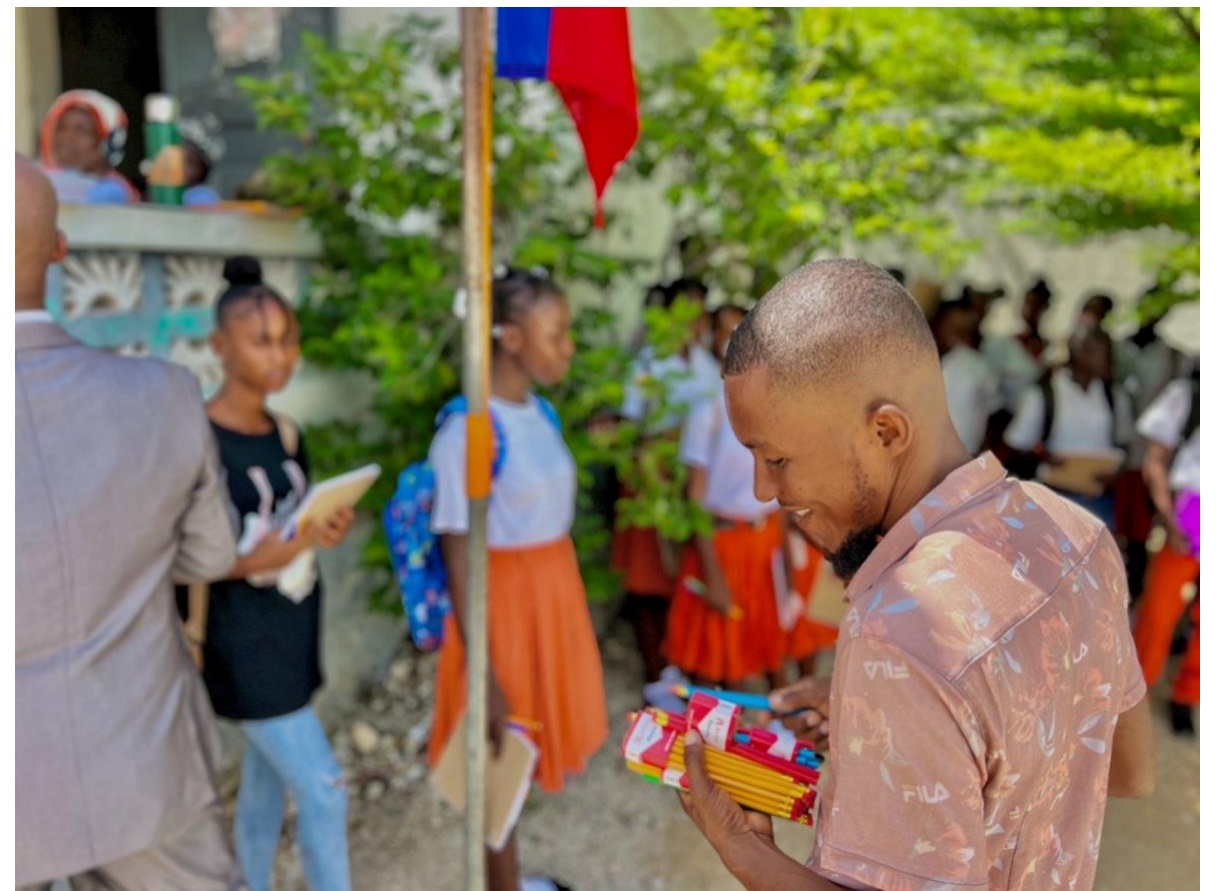

We currently operate COSHAF, a school serving over 200 children every day.

This fall, we sent 67 kids to school to another school several of them never went to school and were good workers at the small farm of their parents. When we look at the joy of the kids and parents, we truly discover the joy of giving.

Living and experiencing our trust in God, we ask the Haitian team to do the same, share the word of God and distribute 167 school supply kits through two communities. We want to teach them about the worthy who can do more for them than anybody else on the earth.

We are playing, teaching, and sharing the Gospel to the youth in Fonds-Verette. We invite you to do the same.

Two Questions People Frequently Ask Us

1. Why are we interested in providing scholarships for children?

To tell the truth, I feel this is what God has placed in my heart to do. It defines my purpose in life. Because people ask me this question so often, it has led me to reflect on the true reasons behind my commitment to this mission of helping children in need access education.

In 2010, after the devastating earthquake in Haiti, my parents lost their jobs, and everything collapsed. It was a difficult year for me as a high school student. We couldn't even afford school supplies; I had to write all my lessons in a single notebook. However, God touched the heart of one of my cousins, who decided to support me throughout that school year. This support was incredibly significant to me and taught me the value of lending a helping hand in times of hardship. Since then, I've felt a deep connection with young people who want to go to school but lack the means to do so.

In 2014, while I was in college, and by God's grace and wisdom, I started working as a draftsman. This job enabled me to offer scholarships to some of the young people in the scout group I was leading at the time. Later, in 2018, along with four friends, we founded Collège Shamma de Fonds Parisien (COSHAF), a school that serves children from families with limited financial means.

Today, COSHAF serves approximately 200 children and is led by one of the former scholarship recipients. My younger brother Yvens, also a scholarship beneficiary, is now working at MEMBER 1st in Pennsylvania. Many other scholarship recipients are also making significant progress in their lives.

When I reflect on what God has done in my life and the lives of the young people I've supported, I see countless reasons to thank Him for this mission. It also reinforces the need to do even more. We ask the Lord for strength and courage to help more children and youth while supporting their parents, many of whom are subsistence farmers. This mission God has placed on our hearts can be summarized as: "GO AND DO THE SAME!"

2. Why a foundation? Why PAF?

Penn Ayiti Foundation (PAF)—a name blending English and Haitian Creole—represents God's provision through a Christian American family and the American people. God allowed them to invest their time and resources to help us Haitians during a time when life was extremely difficult. Their provision transformed our lives, and we now feel it is our duty to share that experience in return.

Through PAF, we aim to serve as a bridge between what we have received and what we can give. We want to support Haitian children while learning from the positive experiences in this country and using those lessons to transform others' lives. This is how we aim to serve as instruments of God to make an impact in society and continue seeking His glory in all we do.
